

Learning Disability Nursing Apprenticeships

Why do we need Learning Disability Nurses?

- NHS Long Term plan identifies clear ambitions for people with a Learning Disability and/or Autism to get better support - Learning Disability nurses are the people they feel most supported by.
- People with a Learning Disability die at least 16 years earlier than their peers from preventable conditions – as outlined in the LEDER reviews.
- Interventions from Acute Liaison learning disability nurses can prevent these deaths.
- All England plan for Learning Disability Nursing is joint HEE&NHS E/I plan to increase Learning Disability nurse numbers.
- Four areas of focus:
 - Attract.
 - Retain
 - Develop
 - Celebrate

Learning Disability Nursing Apprenticeships

Rationale for enhancement offer:

- Learning Disability Nursing numbers have been in decline from 13,866 in 2017 on the NMC register to 13,516 in 2021.
- We have seen the numbers of starters on pre reg learning disability nurse courses increase from 409 in 2018/2019 to 554 in 2021.
- However, this is still a relatively small increase in applicants.
- We are also being advised that regions continue to experience shortages of learning disability nurses.
- We therefore need extra routes into learning disability nursing to increase the numbers of learning disability nurses.
